RUSSIA IS CERTAIN TO AID SERBIA

All Europe May Turn War Dogs Loose.

CALLS MEN TO COLORS

Czar Issues an Imperial Ukase Assembling Vast Army to Assist Serbia.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—An imperial ukase issued by the emperor calls to the colors an immense number of reservists. The men called out are all the reservists of twenty-three whole governments and of seventy-one districts in fourteen other governments; part of the reservists of nine districts of four governments; the naval reservists in sixty-four districts of twelve Russian governments; and one Finnish government; the time expired Cossacks of the territories of Don, Kuban, Terek, Astrakhan, Orenburg and Ural and a corresponding number of reservists officers of the medical and veterinary services.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—In Russian eyes the die is cast. Only a political miracle can avert war.

Russia does not swerve from her determination to support Serbia and partial mobilization already has been ordered. There is every indication that the whole vast military machinery of Russia will soon be set in motion.

An imperial manifesto is awaited. Should Emperor Nicholas become generalissimo of the forces, as it is understood he will, an immense wave of enthusiasm will sweep over Russia.

The political parties have sunk their differences. The general attitude is not jingoistic, but one of resolute confidence in the justice of the country's cause and readiness to make all sacrifices.

The proposal attributed to Austria to discuss terms when Belgrade has been occupied is regarded as impossible. It is pointed out that before the opening of hostilities Russia proposed to Austria a direct exchange of views, which Austria rejected.

SAYS BRITAIN IS LEADER

Authority on Flying Discusses War Aeroplanes.

New York, July 30.—Probably no man in America is better informed concerning the relative strength and weakness of the aerial navies of the big European powers than George E. A. Hallett, engineer and assistant of Lieutenant John Cyril Porte, R. N., and one-half the crew of the transatlantic flyer America.

Mr. Hallett spent more than a year in Europe, first as instructor in the imperial Russian flying school at Sebastopol, later as student and aeronautical observer in France, England and Germany. In an interview at the Aero Club of America Mr. Hallett gave a reporter his views on the continental air fleets.

Contrary to the opinion of other experts Mr. Hallett believes that in quality at least, and in fighting efficiency, England is the European leader in the air.

SERVIANS BLOW UP BRIDGE

Destroy Structure Over River Between Semlin and Belgrade.

Vienna, July 30.—The Servians blew up the bridge spanning the River Save between the Austrian town of Semlin and Belgrade. The Austrian infantry and artillery stationed at Semlin, in conjunction with monitors on the Danube, fired on the Servian position beyond the bridge. The Servians retreated after a short engagement, with trifling losses.

A dispatch to a Vienna paper says that three of the Danube monitors began shelling Belgrade after the bridge across the Save had been destroyed by the Servians. The shells wrought havoc in the exposed part of the city.

Eventually the proclamation will be framed on the document issued when Italy and Turkey were at war in 1911 over Tripoli. ## NEW TROUBLE IN MEXICO FEARED

People at All Times Ripe For Revolution.

"PORK" PART OF LANGUAGE

Senator Objects to Word, Saying That It Is Undignified and Should Have No Standing in Body Like United States Senate—Kenyon Fights River and Harbor Measure.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, July 30.—[Special.]—When the government of old Porfirio Diaz crumbled and he failed to provide a successor who could rule Mexico with the same bold and iron methods that he employed he turned over to the United States a legacy of trouble which promises to be with us for many years to come. The interests which Americans have in Mexico, the many Americans located in Mexico and the fact that the Americans have incurred the ill will of many of the malcontents and bandits of Mexico by reason of favoritism which Diaz had shown them made them the objects of attack when the strong hand of Diaz could no longer protect them.

It mattered little what course the Americans pursued in regard to Mexico. It was inevitable that trouble would follow. A great many men believed then that the only practical way in which the Mexican situation could be handled was by intervention, and they believe the same thing now. It is feared that permanent peace cannot be maintained.

A Revolutionary People. The Mexicans, like most of the Latin Americans, are a revolutionary type. Revolutions have been inevitable in all of the South American countries unless a strong dictator was in control. Mexico has been no exception to the rule. No altruistic government will suffice in that country. Revolutions are too easy to start. Men with money have no difficulty in employing a bandit leader and starting a revolution. But the greatest difficulty of all is the fact that none of the revolutionary leaders is satisfied with any one who may be successful in obtaining the presidency. They cannot agree among themselves, and counter revolutions are the result.

An Unpleasant Term.

"There is less pork in this bill than in any bill that ever came before the senate." Such was a remark of a senator in discussing the river and harbor bill. Then Senator Gallinger quoted the chief of engineers as saying that "there is less than one-half of 1 per cent pork in the river and harbor bill." Finally Senator Clark of Wyoming inquired what was meant by the term "pork" in connection with a bill. This made the grave and solemn senators laugh. Finally a protest was made by one senator against the use of the word "pork" in connection with that or any other bill. He said it was undignified and should have no standing in a body like the United States senate. At the same time the word "pork" in connection with all such measures seems to have become a part of the language.

Insists Upon Cuts.

"If they will cut out about $200,000 of inexcusable projects in the river and harbor bill there will be no difficulty about passing it," remarked Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who is fighting the river and harbor measure. "Unless they do cut out some of these projects the bill won't pass. It will be unfortunate, too, for there are many meritorious provisions in the bill, and I am especially in favor of building levees for the protection of land on the lower Mississippi."

Reserve Board Nominations.

No one need assume that it is a pleasant task for these Democratic senators to oppose the president when he makes nominations. The fight on two members of the federal reserve board was not made with any desire to antagonize the president, as these senators realize that it means unpopularity. "Is it going to be the tolls fight over again?" asked Senator Ashurst of Arizona, who is one of the senators that opposed the president in regard to tolls. The Arizona senator added that it was not his desire to be placed in the attitude of antagonizing the president.

An attempt was made to get a bill through congress to put mail chutes in the public building at Cleveland, O., and Jerry Donovan of Connecticut went on the rampage against it. The amount was for only $800. "This is one of the finest examples of pork that exists," declared Donovan.

"It is a small pig, then," remarked Ashbrook of Ohio. Donovan went on to explain that the public building bill for Cleveland was originally for $2,500,000, but it was finally increased in different appropriations until it reached $3,375,000. "They have had their share," retorted Donovan, "and they have had their fingers in the pie wagon long enough."

Rural Credits Bill. Strenuously as has been the demand for a rural credits bill it will not pass at this session. "We can't pass the rural credits bill this session," said Senator Hoke Smith, who is an influential man in his party, "but we ought to put it in shape so that it can be passed early in the next session of congress."

Mean Observation.

"Miss Oldgirl has raven hair." "Yes, but it doesn't match her crows' feet."—Baltimore American.

GERMAN OFFICIALS CONFER

Rumors Afloat Army and Naval Forces Will Be Mobilized.

Berlin, July 30.—An important official conference on the Austro-Servian situation was held here. It is understood that the conferees included, in addition to Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor; Gottlieb von Jagow, the foreign minister; Admiral von Tirpitz, minister of marine, and one of the emperor's aide-de-camps, and a number of the commanding generals of the German army.

It was reported in circles close to the Austrian embassy that a mobilization of the German forces was highly probable. No confirmation of this report was obtained.

DENIES GOVERNMENT IS RUNNING AMUCK

President Receives Delegation of Business Men.

Washington, July 30.—Defending the administration's anti-trust program, President Wilson told a large delegation of business men representing large wholesale organizations that he is seeking to end an era of suspicion and recrimination "by putting into law what the moral judgment of the community has said ought to be there." He assured them that the government is not running amuck. The wholesalers laid before the president a prepared argument against several features of the Clayton anti-trust bill and the trade commission bill, but said they approved of the general purposes of the proposed legislation.

Mr. Wilson entered into a detailed discussion of the bills and promised to lay his callers' suggestions before the proper committee of the senate. The president also talked of business conditions and anti-trust legislation with Hugh Chalmers, a Detroit manufacturer, who agreed with the president's views, and said that prosperity will come as soon as the present uncertainty is relieved.

MARK 100 YEARS OF PEACE

The stamps of 2 and 5 cent denominations will be ready for issue early in the fall. The words: "Peace; 1814-1914," will be on each.

MUST FILE BY PETITION

Progressives Fail to Nominate Candidate for Governor.

St. Paul, July 30.—A petition to be signed by 500 voters will be circulated to place the name of Hugh T. Halbert on the ballot as the Progressive party nominee for governor. Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith ruled that by failing to get 10 per cent of the party vote for governor in 1910 in the recent primaries Halbert was not legally nominated for governor. The other Progressive candidates had no opposition and were not on the ballot and Mr. Smith holds they were legally nominated.

Excursion Boat Hits Barge.

New York, July 30.—At least one and possibly four persons were drowned and it is feared other casualties occurred when the river steamer Majestic of Newark, returning with about 1,000 excursionists on board from a day's outing at College point, Long Island, collided in the East river with a stone laden barge, capsizing the freight craft.

London, July 30.—Events brought no relief to the suspense nor any diplomatic achievements to restrict the Austro-Servian war to the two nations. The feeling throughout England and the continental feeling as reflected by reports to the London papers is distinctly more anxious. Two events have made for pessimism. Direct negotiations by Russia and Austria, which gave the other governments hope of a compromise, have failed and are ended. Russia is mobilizing against the Austrian frontier four army corps in each of four districts, consisting of 1,280,000 men. Russia's resolution to stand by Serbia appears to be fixed.

The diplomatic representatives have not despaired. All say there is hope yet and base their belief on the fact that Germany, France, Great Britain and Italy—the last two named most of all—do not want war and don't think the Austro-Servian quarrel important enough to justify it. Sir Edward Grey, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, to whom all look as the foremost conciliator of Europe, is attempting, it is believed, to frame fresh proposals for a settlement.

Diplomats Are Hopeful.

The diplomatic world of London clings to the belief that a means can be found whereby Austria may satisfy Russia that she can attain her ends without recourse to measures which the Russian government and Russian public opinion cannot accept.

There is the greatest anxiety as to whether Russian mobilization will be confined to the Austrian boundary or is proceeding secretly against Germany, but between mobilization and war there is a gap which the two nations bridged in 1909 and may again.

The first important fighting occurred before Belgrade when the Servians blew up a bridge across the river. The Austrians attacked them and the Servians retreated to the capital, which unconfirmed reports say is being bombarded.

Councils of state were held at St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris. The British government continues the attitude that the crisis does not yet concern Great Britain, save as a spectator and peacemaker. An official statement issued says:

"No measures have been taken by the military authorities which are of the nature of mobilization. The only orders which have been given are of a purely precautionary and defensive character. The naval measures are also precautionary. No mobilization has been ordered."

DUE TO WILSON'S WISHES

Warburg Agrees to Appear Before Senate Committee.

Washington, July 30.—Paul M. Warburg, the New York banker whose nomination to the federal reserve board has long been held up in the senate, communicated with the White House that he would appear before the senate banking committee. He also telegraphed to Senator Owen, chairman of the committee, saying that his appearance could be arranged.

Senator Owen said he had not set a date for the committee to meet, but that he would do so as soon as he learned definitely when Mr. Warburg would come to Washington.

A letter from President Wilson urged Mr. Warburg to alter his decision not to appear before the committee.

CARRANZA READY FOR PEACE

Rebel Chief Denies He Is Placing Any Obstacle in Its Way.

Washington, July 30.—Direct word from General Carranza announcing that "if Carral offers to surrender unconditionally I believe the present situation in Mexico will soon be satisfactorily solved" came to the Constitutional junta in Washington. Carranza's message, dated at Tampico, directed Rafael Zubaran, head of the agency, to deny any reports that he is endeavoring to place difficulties in the way of establishing peace.

"If they will cut out about $20,000,000 of inexcusable projects in the river and harbor bill there will be no difficulty about passing it," remarked Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who is fighting the river and harbor measure. "Unless they do cut out some of these projects the bill won't pass. It will be unfortunate, too, for there are many meritorious provisions in the bill, and I am especially in favor of building levees for the protection of land on the lower Mississippi."

Reserve Board Nominations.

No one need assume that it is a pleasant task for these Democratic senators to oppose the president when he makes nominations. The fight on two members of the federal reserve board was not made with any desire to antagonize the president, as these senators realize that it means unpopularity. "Is it going to be the toll fight over again?" asked Senator Ashurst of Arizona, who is one of the senators that opposed the president in regard to tolls. The Arizona senator added that it was not his desire to be placed in the attitude of antagonizing the president.

Donovan Finds Out.

An attempt was made to get a bill through congress to put mail chutes in the public building at Cleveland, O., and Jerry Donovan of Connecticut went on the rampage against it. The amount was for only $800. "This is one of the finest examples of pork that exists," declared Donovan.

"It is a small pig, then," remarked Ashbrook of Ohio. Donovan went on to explain that the public building bill for Cleveland was originally for $2,500,000, but it was finally increased in different appropriations until it reached $3,375,000. "They have had their share," retorted Donovan, "and they have had their fingers in the pie long enough."

Rural Credits Bill.

Strenuously as has been the demand for a rural credits bill it will not pass at this session. "We can't pass the rural credits bill this session," said Senator Hoke Smith, who is an influential man in his party, "but we ought to put it in shape so that it can be passed early in the next session of congress."

GERMAN OFFICIALS CONFER

Rumors Afloat Army and Naval Forces Will Be Mobilized.

Berlin, July 30.—An important official conference on the Austro-Serbian situation was held here.

It is understood that the conferees included, in addition to Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor; Gottlieb von Jagow, the foreign minister; Admiral von Tirpitz, minister of marine, and one of the emperor's aide-de-camps, and a number of the commanding generals of the German army.

It was reported in circles close to the Austrian embassy that a mobilization of the German forces was highly probable. No confirmation of this report was obtained.

DENIES GOVERNMENT
IS RUNNING AMUCKPresident Receives Delegation of Business Men.

Washington, July 30.—Defending the administration's anti-trust program President Wilson told a large delegation of business men representing large wholesale organizations that he is seeking to end an era of suspicion and recrimination "by putting into law what the moral judgment of the community has said ought to be there." He assured them that the government is not running amuck. The wholesalers laid before the president a prepared argument against several features of the Clayton anti-trust bill and the trade commission bill, but said they approved of the general purposes of the proposed legislation.

Mr. Wilson entered into a detailed discussion of the bills and promised to lay his callers' suggestions before the proper committee of the senate.

MARK 100 YEARS OF PEACE

MUST FILE BY PETITION

Progressives Fail to Nominate Candidate for Governor.

St. Paul, July 30.—A petition to be signed by 500 voters will be circulated to place the name of Hugh T. Halbert on the ballot as the Progressive party nominee for governor. Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith ruled that by failing to get 10 per cent of the party vote for governor in 1910 in the recent primaries Halbert was not legally nominated for governor. The other Progressive candidates had no opposition and were not on the ballot and Mr. Smith holds they were legally nominated.

Excursion Boat Hits Barge.

New York, July 30.—At least one and possibly four persons were drowned and it is feared other casualties occurred when the river steamer Majestic of Newark, returning with about 1,000 excursionists on board from a day's outing at College point, Long Island, collided in the East river with a stone laden barge, capsizing the freight craft.

Diplomats Are Hopeful.

The diplomatic world of London clings to the belief that a means can be found whereby Austria may satisfy Russia that she can attain her ends without recourse to measures which the Russian government and Russian public opinion cannot accept.

There is the greatest anxiety as to whether Russian mobilization will be confined to the Austrian boundary or is proceeding secretly against Germany, but between mobilization and war there is a gap which the two nations bridged in 1909 and may again. The first important fighting occurred before Belgrade when the Serbians blew up a bridge across the river. The Austrians attacked them and the Serbians retreated to the capital, which unconfirmed reports say is being bombarded.

Councils of state were held at St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris. The British government continues the attitude that the crisis does not yet concern Great Britain, save as a spectator and peacemaker. An official statement issued says:

"No measures have been taken by the military authorities which are of the nature of mobilization. The only orders which have been given are of a purely precautionary and defensive character. The naval measures are also precautionary. No mobilization has been ordered."

DUE TO WILSON'S WISHES

Warburg Agrees to Appear Before
Senate Committee.

Washington, July 30.—Paul M. Warburg, the New York banker whose nomination to the federal reserve board has long been held up in the senate, communicated with the White House that he would appear before the senate banking committee. He also telegraphed to Senator Owen, chairman of the committee, saying that his appearance could be arranged.

Senator Owen said he had not set a date for the committee to meet, but that he would do so as soon as he learned definitely when Mr. Warburg would come to Washington.

A letter from President Wilson urged Mr. Warburg to alter his decision not to appear before the committee.

CARRANZA READY FOR PEACE

Rebel Chief Denies He Is Placing Any

Washington, July 30.—Direct word from General Carranza announcing that "if Carralja offers to surrender unconditionally I believe the present situation in Mexico will soon be satisfactorily solved" came to the Constitutional junta in Washington.

Carranza's message, dated at Tampico, directed Rafael Zubaran, head of the agency, to deny any reports that he is endeavoring to place difficulties in the way of establishing peace.

H. BRADY GETS BADGE OF HONOR

Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Gives Him the Badge

HAS BEEN MEMBER 40 YEARS

Mr. Brady Joined Division at Brainerd in 1872, Second in State at the Time

T. H. Brady, a veteran Northern Pacific locomotive engineer of Brainerd has been presented with a badge of honor by the Grand International Division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Such a badge is given to members, who like Mr. Brady, have held continuous membership for 40 years and who have been loyal and active and serving with honor in all positions in which they may be placed.

The badge is dated April 11, 1914 from the executive offices at Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Brady has been a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for many years, joining Division No. 144 at Brainerd in August 1872 and this was the second division in the state at that time, the first being No. 102 of Austin. Mr. Brady appreciates the gift, not so much for its intrinsic value, but for what it represents.

The engineers were the first division of organized labor and are now one of the largest and most powerful organizations. The brunt of the fight of organized labor in the early days fell on their shoulders. They blazed the way for other organizations.

HOME LAND A BEAUTY SPOT

Nature Has Reached its Zenith in Splendor and Glory in Beautiful Scenery

As promised the Dispatch before he went on his visit to Sweden and tour of Europe, Rev. Elov Carlson has written the Dispatch and the letter from the popular minister and member of the board of education is given in full:

Baggetorp, Sweden,
July 15th, 1914.

The Dispatch, Brainerd, Minn.

We wish through your columns to remember our splendid city, Brainerd, and our many friends there. Our journey so far has been successful and exceedingly pleasant. To say the least, Sweden is a beauty spot in nature during the summer. Its beautiful scenery must be seen to be appreciated. At present, however, parts of the country are suffering from an unusual drought. Other parts have had plenty of moisture and nature has reached its zenith in splendor and glory.

We have visited Stockholm, Vedum and other cities and have traveled extensively in Östergötland, Södermanland and "Dalarna". The latter place is particularly noted for its beautiful scenery, its magnificent lakes, great white churches and the unique national costumes in which the people are clothed. All in all we are having a splendid time.

The trip home will begin early in September. We then plan to travel through Germany, France and England, stopping at Berlin, Paris, London and other places on the way, and will be back home in Brainerd by the first of October.

Sincere greetings to friends and acquaintances at home.

Rev. and Mrs. Elov G. Carlson.
Pastor Swed. Luth. Church.

A NOBLE WOMAN LAID TO REST

Most Impressive Services Held Over Remains of Mrs. I. T. Dean Wednesday

The funeral service of Mrs. I. T. Dean held yesterday will live in the minds of the citizens of Brainerd for many a day.

The service was held from the residence, the house being filled to its capacity with friends who had learned to know and love the deceased. Rev. G. P. Sheridan, Mrs. Dean's minister, read the most impressive service and gave a few sentences of appreciation of her worth.

As was her wish, Mrs. G. D. LaBar, E. O. Webb and S. F. Alderman sang, the trio singing the beautiful hymn "Asleep in Jesus" and Mr. Alderman sang the selection "There's a Beautiful Land on High." Rev. Sheridan, Mrs. Maud Adrian of Martins Ferry, Ohio, a niece of the deceased and Mrs. Henry White accompanied Mr. Dean to the cemetery followed by the intimate friends.

Words of commendation are due D. E. Whitney, the funeral director, for the beautiful way in which the grave was prepared, lined with flowers it gave the appearance of a garden full of life rather than an earthly enclosure.

Mrs. Lydia Wells Dean was born at Mount Pleasant, Ohio, and was 66 years of age. She received a fine education at the Quaker seminary at Mt. Pleasant, and 34 years last June was married to Mr. Dean, they coming to Brainerd and have lived here ever since.

Mrs. Dean was loved by all who ever crossed her path. One can only say that the community has lost a woman who was the essence of dignity and refinement; the Christian world has lost a valiant and consecrated worker; the First Congregational church has lost one of its truest friends and noblest workers, what is earth's loss is heaven's gain. One cannot help but feel that Heaven has received the spirit of one who exemplified to the letter the Christian life. Blessed is the memory of the just.

Mr. Dean wishes to express his heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly remembered him in his affliction, the deeds of kindness shown helped him to bear what is a terrible loss.

If human friendship can strengthen one feels sure that he will not want for a friend in Brainerd.

SAME DISEASE, HUSBAND AND WIFE

Hurrying to Brainerd to be with her husband, W. G. Jones, a well known express messenger of Duluth about to be operated on for appendicitis, Mrs. Jones was herself stricken with the same malady and both were operated on at the same time at the railway hospital. Jones has been an express messenger for 30 years. Both patients are on the road to recovery.

Communication

Since a certain company is daily advertising to loan money at 3 per cent I want to ask a few questions which I think are of interest to the public. 1st. Why do they not do what they advertise? 2nd. Why in order to get $1,000, loan do they require the borrower to pay in to them $10 monthly for 10 months or $100, for them to hold without interest and without security, before there is a possibility of getting a loan? 3rd. Why do they divide their contracts into series so that holder No. 1 may get his loan after about one year while the rest will have to wait their turns? 4th. When will contract holder No. 50 or 100 get their loans?

I have learned why they can afford to loan at 3 per cent. I could do the same if some one else furnished the money and I took my profits out of the capital.

H. BRADY GETS BADGE OF HONOR

Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Gives Him the Badge

AS BEEN MEMBER 40 YEARS

Mr. Brady Joined Division at Brainerd in 1872, Second in State at the Time

T. H. Brady, a veteran Northern Pacific locomotive engineer of Brainerd has been presented with a badge of honor by the Grand International Division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Such a badge is given to members, who like Mr. Brady, have held continuous membership for 40 years and who have been loyal and active and earning with honor in all positions in which they may be placed.

The badge is dated April 11, 1914 from the executive offices at Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Brady has been a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for many years, joining Division No. 144 at Brainerd in August 1872 and this was the second division in the state at that time, the first being No. 102 of Austin. Mr. Brady appreciates the gift, not so much for its intrinsic value, but for what it represents.

The engineers were the first division of organized labor and are now one of the largest and most powerful organizations. The brunt of the fight of organized labor in the early days fell on their shoulders. They blazed the way for other organizations.

Verkennes-Dechaine

The bride was dressed in pink satin trimmed with beads and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Warren Beckley, dressed in blue satin and carrying a bouquet of carnations. The best man was Warren Beckley.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bridegroom and a dance followed. Mr. and Mrs. Verkennes have gone to housekeeping on North Tenth street. He is employed in the railway shops and is an industrious and exemplary young man. The bride has a large circle of acquaintances.

The Dispatch wishes them a happy and prosperous wedded life.

This is a startling story of shipwreck, showing stirring adventures at the foot of an active volcano and coming to a dramatic climax when a party of castaways escape from a modern garden of Eden by following the dark path of a subterranean river.

It is needless to say that this splendid feature has great educational values. Considering the many settings, strange and beautiful, the costumes that are worn, the customs and manner of the natives who inhabit the Hawaiian Islands, which are shown, it is as though the spectator was actually in the islands himself becoming acquainted, in an intimate way with it all.

An Adventure With Bandits In Mexico

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

Dudley Cameron, connected with producers of oil in Mexico, was sent some fifty miles northward from Tampico into the state of Tamaulipas to pay a man from whom his employers had bought some oil property $3,000 and get a deed for the land. There was no railroad to the place of his destination, and he proceeded on horseback. He carried the money in his hip pocket underneath his revolver.

This was when the Constitutionalists were about to march upon Tampico. Mexico has never been free from brigands, and it was not to be expected that in such troublous times the road would be safe. But the property was known to the purchasers to be very valuable, and they were anxious to get it into their possession. They were willing to risk their funds and Cameron was willing to risk carrying them. He would be largely the gainer if he succeeded in paying for the property and securing a deed, because the company that employed him was a very large concern, and it was worth his while to find favor with it.

He carried no provisions with him, calculating to get what he needed along the way. He had made half the distance when at evening he came to an adobe house, at which he concluded to stop for supper. Riding up to the door he called to those within, and the door was opened by a half breed girl about eighteen years old. She was quite dark looking for a Mexican, though dark complexioned and with coarse hair.

Cameron had been in Mexico long enough to speak the language tolerably well and asked her if he could get some supper. She went back into the house and presently returned with a man, to whom the traveler repeated his request, adding that he would like to stay the night. The man after looking him over scrutinizingly assented. Cameron dismounted, put his horse under a shed and entered the house. He found there another man besides the one who had received him.

Cameron did not quite like the looks of the men. As for the girl, she seemed to be in a condition of captivity. At any rate, they gave her orders harshly, and she did their bidding apparently because she could not help herself. She cooked the supper, consisting of tamales and tortillas, the latter thin, light, wafer-like cakes, being very delicious.

After supper both the men left the house, and Cameron sat on the veranda smoking his pipe. The girl was within clearing the table and washing the dishes. Presently she came out wiping a plate and said to him:

"Senor, I would advise you not to lodge in this house tonight."

"Why so?" asked the American, starting.

"These men are bandits. They killed my father, with whom I lived, and have since forced me to do their housework. I am awaiting an opportunity to return to the Rio Grande. I lived on this side of the river, but if I can reach it I will cross into United States territory. Then I shall fear nothing."

Dudley Cameron was a chivalrous fellow and withal at an age wherein the greater risk the greater its attractiveness. He was on his way northward. The girl also wished to go northward, and he felt under obligations to her for the warning she had given him. To ride away into safety, leaving her to be tyrannized over by a couple of bandits, did not accord with his sense of honor. As soon as she had spoken the last words she went back into the house to finish her chores. While she was doing so Cameron thought over the situation. When she had finished she came out and said:

"For the love of heaven, senor, do not let them suspect that I have hinted to you what they are. Do not say, 'I have changed my mind and will continue my journey tonight.' At bedtime go to your room and pretend to sleep, but instead of doing so let yourself down from the window to the ground—the distance is not great—mount your horse and ride away."

"Why should these men trouble me?"

"The one who admitted you has seen you at Tampico and knows you are an employee of the oil people. They do not believe that you are traveling without money, at least for your expenses."

Cameron made no reply to this. He was thinking. How fortunate that this girl was on hand to warn him! He felt very grateful to her. Had she not done so he would probably have been murdered and robbed during the night. Now, if he could not honorably ride away before the return of the men he could at least stand on the defensive in his room and beat a retreat through the window. Then it occurred to him that by taking the girl with him he would be freed from the obligation to await their return. Had he not so much money with him he would risk it. As it was, he did not like putting in jeopardy funds which had been entrusted to his care. He wondered if the girl would go with him.

"Have you a horse?"

"Peppita. My name is Peppita Gonzalez. There are horses in the stables belonging to the bandits."

"At what time do they usually return?"

"They go to a house a short distance down the road, where they gamble and drink pulque and usually return late. What they will do if they have designs on you I do not know. Quite likely they will give you plenty of time to get to sleep, come in late stealthily and endeavor to take you unaware."

"Suppose you and I should leave together. Is there not a point of safety we could reach before they would overtake us?"

After some thought the girl said that if they could reach a city like Victoria in time to secure protection all would be well, but if they were captured before entering the town the bandits would surely kill the girl.

"I am armed," said Cameron. "If you were armed also it would be an equal fight."

"The men always carry their weapons with them."

Cameron did not like waiting for the bandits to return and was equally averse to leaving the girl under the suspicion of having warned him. There seemed no way but to take her with him.

"If you are willing to take the risk of going with me," he said at last, "we will leave at once."

It was some time before Peppita replied. When she did she said: "I would rather die than remain here in captivity. Were it not for the times I might invoke the aid of the law. At present there is no law in Mexico. But I will not place you in jeopardy on my account. I have suspected that there are arms concealed somewhere in the house. If I can find anything with which to defend myself I will go with you. If not I will remain. But I will not ask you to remain also."

She went into the house, where Cameron heard her hunting. She had been gone some time when he heard some thing give way, and in a few minutes Peppita came out with a brace of revolvers. Cameron examined them and found that they had been freshly loaded. This he knew from the fact that the cartridge cases were not dinged. Peppita had pried open a closet door and found a lot of arms and ammunition.

Within ten minutes the two were riding away in the darkness. It was about 9 o'clock, and the bandits were not expected to return till midnight at least. But Peppita did not believe that they would remain long in ignorance of the flight. She suspected that they might have set a watch on the house. Besides, there were others of the gang occupying here and there one of the adobe houses along the road, any one of whom might have been commissioned to report any one hurrying by.

Their route lay midway between the gulf and the railroad leading northward through Victoria and Monterey. The roads were mostly unpaved, so that their horses' hoofs sounded only with a dull thud. Hoping to avoid attention, they rode for awhile at a walk, then assumed a brisk trot and finally broke into a gallop.

Peppita was right in assuming that their flight would be reported to the bandits. They had not been on the way half an hour when suddenly Peppita's horse threw back an ear. In another moment the girl heard the tread of horses coming swiftly, and lastly it broke on the less sensitive ears of the American.

"Now we must run for it," he said. "We must direct our course to the nearest town. How far is the house we left from Victoria?"

"I've heard it said that it is about twelve miles."

"We've come about five; that leaves seven. We must turn into the first road we come upon leading westward."

The road forked a short distance farther on, the left hand road leading, so Cameron believed, to Victoria. They turned into it, but seven miles was a long distance for a run for life with men following on feet horses. The only comfort for the fugitives was that their pursuers were doubtless full of pulque.

Peppita's horse, as were all the horses of the bandits, was fleet. Cameron found it difficult to urge his mount on to keep up with her. He spurred him and belabored him all to no purpose. Meanwhile the hoofbeats in rear grew more distinct. At last Cameron thrust his hand into his hip pocket, pulled out his roll of bills and handed them to Peppita, saying:

"Take these and go on. If the bandits spare my life I will join you in Victoria."

"Is it money?"

"Three thousand dollars."

She took it and, with a parting pressure of the hand, urged on her horse and soon left Cameron far behind.

His horse was now staggering. He dismounted and, slapping the animal's haunch, sent him on, then took to a thicket near the road. In a few minutes the pursuers clattered by, to find the horse, which they recognized as the American's, standing exhausted in the road a mile farther on.

Then began a search of the surrounding country, which was fruitless and enabled Peppita to reach Victoria. There the two met in the street the next day. Peppita handed Cameron the bills, and he, after she had agreed to remain where she was till his return, completed his journey and the transaction upon which he had been sent. The oil company paid Peppita a sum equal to the one she had saved them, and she went to live with relatives on the other side of the Rio Grande. Cameron gained a good deal of credit with his company by his feat, which was added to since the property purchased turned out to be very valuable. He was advanced to a prominent position and has the prospect of making a fortune.

Astronomical.

Some curious and interesting astronomical phenomena are recorded in the old Chinese annals which go back to a great antiquity. In 681 B. C. a night is mentioned without clouds and without stars. This may perhaps refer to the total eclipse of the sun, but if so the eclipse is not mentioned in the Chinese list of eclipses. In the year 141 B. C. it is stated that the sun and moon appeared of a deep red color during five days, a phenomenon which caused great terror among the people. In 74 B. C. it is related that a star as large as the moon appeared and was followed in its motion by several stars of ordinary size. This probably refers to an unusually large bolide, or fire ball. In 38 B. C. a fall of meteoric stones is recorded.

The First Gold Certificate.

Piracy on the Mediterranean caused the creation of the first gold certificate, according to most authentic records. Rome bought wheat in Egypt, while Egypt had to pay tribute money for the maintenance of the Roman army. To ship gold for these payments was to tempt the ingenious pirates who infested the eastern Mediterranean. It was probably some able money lender who thought of the scheme of having the wheat importer take his gold to the Roman bank, which had a branch in Alexandria, and getting certificates, which the pirates would not dare go into Alexandria to attempt to cash. The Egyptian tax collector got his certificate from the Alexandria bank and sent it to Rome, where it was honored. —Wall Street Journal.

Unravel This.

A young woman asked the magistrate for a separation from her husband, to whom she was married only three months ago. She added: "He is my second husband. My first is doing time." "Then this man is not your husband?" asked the magistrate. "Oh, yes, he is," was the reply. "I was my first husband's second wife. His first one is still alive. That is what he is doing time for." —Exchange.

Porcelain Flowers.

Artificial flowers were made in ancient times by the Egyptians. In Europe, during the eighteenth century, when there existed such a craze for porcelain, flowers were made of this substance, while the odor of the real flowers was imitated by the use of perfumes.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It if Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten-cent store, and often times get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona (1 tablet).
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and often times cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which would injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know for once what real eye comfort is.

WHAT'S the good of a tobacco that makes you take a big wad and grind and grind on it?

"Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew that gives you real tobacco satisfaction from a small chew.

That's why men are glad to get "Right-Cut," and to pass the glad word along to every man who chews. It's pure, rich, tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary caddled tobacco makes you spit too much. Had she not done so he would probably have been murdered and robbed during the night. Now, if he could not honorably ride away before the return of the men he could at least stand on the defensive in his room and beat a retreat through the window. Then it occurred to him that by taking the girl with him he would be freed from the obligation to await their return. Had he not so much money with him he would risk it. As it was, he did not like putting in jeopardy funds which had been entrusted to his care. He wondered if the girl would go with him.

"Have you a horse?"

"Pepeita. My name is Pepeita Gonzales. There are horses in the stables belonging to the bandits."

"At what time do they usually return?"

"They go to a house a short distance down the road, where they gamble and drink pulque and usually return late. What they will do if they have designs on you I do not know. Quite likely they will give you plenty of time to get to sleep, come in late stealthily and endeavor to take you unaware."

"Suppose you and I should leave together. Is there not a point of safety we could reach before they would overtake us?"

After some thought the girl said that if they could reach a city like Victoria in time to secure protection all would be well, but if they were captured before entering the town the bandits would surely kill the girl.

"I am armed," said Cameron, "if you were armed also it would be an equal fight."

"The men always carry their weapons with them."

Cameron did not like waiting for the bandits to return and was equally averse to leaving the girl under the suspicion of having warned him. There seemed no way but to take her with him.

"If you are willing to take the risk of going with me," he said at last, "we will leave at once."

It was some time before Pepeita replied. When she did she said: "I would rather die than remain here in captivity. Were it not for the times I might invoke the aid of the law. At present there is no law in Mexico. But I will not place you in jeopardy on my account. I have suspected that there are arms concealed somewhere in the house. If I can find anything with which to defend myself I will go with you. If not I will remain. But I will not ask you to remain also."

She went into the house, where Cameron heard her hunting. She had been some time when he heard something give way, and in a few minutes Pepeita came out with a brace of revolvers. Cameron examined them and found that they had been freshly loaded. This he knew from the fact that the cartridge cases were not dinged. Pepeita had pried open a closet door and found a lot of arms and ammunition.

Within ten minutes the two were riding away in the darkness. It was about 9 o'clock, and the bandits were not expected to return till midnight at least. But Pepeita did not believe that they would remain long in ignorance of the flight. She suspected that they might have set a watch on the house. Besides, there were others of the gang occupying here and there one of the adobe houses along the road, any one of whom might have been commissioned to report any one hurrying by.

Their route lay midway between the gulf and the railroad leading northward through Victoria and Monterey. The roads were mostly unpaved, so that their horses' hoofs sounded only with a dull thud. Hoping to avoid attention, they rode for awhile at a walk, then assumed a brisk trot and finally broke into a gallop.

Pepeita was right in assuming that their flight would be reported to the bandits. They had not been on the way half an hour when suddenly Pepeita's horse threw back an ear. In another moment the girl heard the tread of horses coming swiftly, and lastly it broke on the less sensitive ears of the American.

"Now we must run for it," he said. "We must direct our course to the nearest town. How far is the house we left from Victoria?"

"I've heard it said that it is about twelve miles."

"We've come about five; that leaves seven. We must turn into the first road we come upon leading westward."

The road forked a short distance farther on, the left hand road leading, so Cameron believed, to Victoria. They turned into it, but seven miles was a long distance for a run for life with men following on fleet horses. The only comfort for the fugitives was that their pursuers were doubtless full of pulque.

Pepeita's horse, as were all the horses of the bandits, was fleet. Cameron found it difficult to urge his mount on to keep up with her. He spurred him and belabored him all to no purpose. Meanwhile the footbeats in rear grew more distinct. At last Cameron thrust his hand into his hip pocket, pulled out his roll of bills and handed them to Pepeita, saying:

"Take these and go on. If the bandits spare my life I will join you in Victoria."

"Is it money?"

"Three thousand dollars."

She took it and, with a parting pressure of the hand, urged on her horse and soon left Cameron far behind.

His horse was now staggering. He dismounted and, slapping the animal's haunch, sent him on, then took to a thicket near the road. In a few minutes the pursuers clattered by, to find the horse, which they recognized as the American's, standing exhausted in the road a mile farther on.

Then began a search of the surrounding country, which was fruitless and enabled Pepeita to reach Victoria. There the two met in the street the next day. Pepeita handed Cameron the bills, and he, after she had agreed to remain where she was till his return, completed his journey and the transaction upon which he had been sent.

The oil company paid Pepeita a sum equal to the one she had saved them, and she went to live with relatives on the other side of the Rio Grande.

Cameron gained a good deal of eclat with his company by his feat, which was added to since the property purchased turned out to be very valuable. He was advanced to a prominent position and has the prospect of making a fortune.

Astronomical.

Some curious and interesting astronomical phenomena are recorded in the old Chinese annals which go back to a great antiquity. In 681 B. C. a night is mentioned without clouds and without stars. This may perhaps refer to a total eclipse of the sun, but if so the eclipse is not mentioned in the Chinese list of eclipses. In the year 141 B. C. it is stated that the sun and moon appeared of a deep red color during five days, a phenomenon which caused great terror among the people. In 74 B. C. it is related that a star as large as the moon appeared and was followed in its motion by several stars of ordinary size. This probably refers to an unusually large bolide, or fire ball. In 38 B. C. a fall of meteoric stones is recorded.

The First Gold Certificate.

Piracy on the Mediterranean caused the creation of the first gold certificate, according to most authentic records. Rome bought wheat in Egypt, while Egypt had to pay tribute money for the maintenance of the Roman army. To ship gold for these payments was to tempt the ingenious pirates who infested the eastern Mediterranean. It was probably some able money lender who thought of the scheme of having the wheat importer take his gold to the Roman bank, which had a branch in Alexandria, and getting certificates, which the pirates would not dare go into Alexandria to attempt to cash. The Egyptian tax collector got his certificate from the Alexandria bank and sent it to Rome, where it was honored. —Wall Street Journal.

Unravel This.

A young woman asked the magistrate for a separation from her husband, to whom she was married only three months ago. She added: "He is my second husband. My first is doing time." "Then this man is not your husband?" asked the magistrate. "Oh, yes, he is," was the reply. "I was my first husband's second wife. His first one is still alive. That is what he is doing time for." —Exchange.

Porcelain Flowers.

Artificial flowers were made in ancient times by the Egyptians. In Europe, during the eighteenth century, when there existed such a craze for porcelain, flowers were made of this substance, while the odor of the real flowers was imitated by the use of perfumes.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It If Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten-cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona (1 tablet).
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which would injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know for once what real eye comfort is.

THE PAINTER GETS A GOOD COMBINATION

WHAT'S the good of a tobacco that makes you take a big wad and grind and grind on it?

"Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew that gives you real tobacco satisfaction from a small chew.

That's why men are glad to get "Right-Cut," and to pass the glad word along to every man who chews.

It's pure, rich, tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary caudied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt grinds out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

If your dealer does not sell it, send us 10c. in stamps for a pouch of "Right-Cut" Chewing Tobacco.
